This class explores women’s relationship to formal and informal politics in the 20th and 21st centuries. Students will consider the political leadership of women inside and outside the United States, with particular attention to the centennial of the Nineteenth Amendment. Each student will follow the campaign of a female candidate during this historic election cycle, and students will collaborate to weave these collected materials into a documentary film.